The article deals with the object of administrative and legal transformation of the management of the protection of the constitutional order, the security and well-being of Russia with the help of a system-holistic aspect, taking for the axiom that the very notion of administrative and legal transformation of protection management is a derivative of the Constitution and all the characteristics of this transformation are directly represented in it.

Keywords: strategic planning, crisis phenomena, the doctrine of administrative legal transformation, efficiency criteria, protection, legal understanding, law enforcement, the concept of administrative legal transformation.

The article analyzes the influence of accelerated monopolization on the development of the economy of a number of countries with «catch — up modernization» (Germany, Japan and Russia) in the second half of the XIX-early XX century. Special attention is paid to the economic policy of the Russian state. It is concluded that the development of the national economies of the countries in question was a natural result of various factors, among which an important place belongs to the accelerated monopolization.

In article on the basis of activity of the car-repair companies the negative factors influencing effective management of the material resources which are used at repair of cars are considered. For their reduction is proposed to apply mechanisms of neutralization, including the limiting mechanism, the redundancy mechanism, escape mechanism. It is concluded that the most radical of the methods is the avoidance mechanism, which is achieved on the basis of a method of cost optimization to reduce the negative impact of deficit factors and underutilization of material and technical resources.
