Today, there are problems of efficient spending of budgetary funds, which are caused by the lack of rational principles for the use of budgetary funds by public law entities. The author comes to the conclusion that the existing budgetary system of the Russian Federation was formed under the conditions of intense influence of both the Soviet type of functioning of the budgetary system and the European integration experience in budgetary «construction». The entire system of distribution of powers between the center and territorial units is based on the principle of “budgetary federalism,” which is the most logical and effective under the conditions of the existing federal type of the RF state.
